Outline and Benefits

What is managed IT?

Managed IT is a service delivered by technical professionals to implement, manage and maintain IT within an organization. The aim of Managed IT is to take a professional level of care and service for your businesses systems and inventory, this is achieved by a combination of proactive and reactive action, taking a large load of any internal staff allowing them to work uninterrupted.

Do I need Managed IT?

It is recommended that businesses of all size evaluate the following and deem whether Managed IT will contribute to their business.

Assistance when it matters MOST

Being able to pick up a phone and speak with someone who can just get that issue resolved.

Preventative Maintenance

IT is no different in concept to many other ideologies and objects. There is maintenance required, and neglecting this requirement generally makes for worse and more frequent issues. This is very important as it plays a large part in the continuity of a business system.

Backups

Ever find yourself deleting a file and wishing you hadn't? We've all done it. What matters is taking copies of your valuable data and securely storing it for means to recover.

Cyber Security

This day and age Security is often talked about as paramount – it generally should be! What could be worse than deleting your own file? Having a hacker delete it. Managed IT involves taking care of cyber security to ensure everything is done to prevent security (or privacy!) compromise and data loss.
